PRISON BREAK

Where would we be without our "to do" list? Dogs would be unfed, garages would be unkempt, cars would be unwashed. For getting things done in our fast-paced and frenetic lives there has probably been no better invention than the "to do" list. But, when it comes to relationships a "to do" list approach seems woefully inadequate. Sure they can remind us of what is important to others, but in many ways if we don't graduate from the "list" approach our relationships never really develop the sense of intimacy and spontaneity they were intended to have. In many ways relationships are about "being" and not so much about "doing." Being open, being loving, being faithful.

Today we continue our exploration of the book of Galatians. Paul's audience in this first century church was not all that unlike we are. They began their relationship with God by pure faith in Christ which led them to freedom . . . a life on the outside. But freedom was not that familiar to them and gradually they found themselves drifting back into a life of rules, a life of religious activity, duty and rituals. This weekend we hope you gain new insight into how to live life on the outside, a life of freedom in Christ.

We're so glad you're here today! If this is your first time with us, please know that there are people waiting to answer your questions at Guest Central in the lobby. You can also learn more about us online at chestnutridgechurch.com.
