"Are you the one who was to come, or should we expect someone else?" "By what authority are you doing these things?" "How can you say that we shall be set free?" "Who are you?"

When Jesus walked the earth, He made such a stir that people were constantly trying to figure Him out, asking questions about His nature, His origin, His actions, His words. Some believed right away, some sought ways to kill him, some doubted for a long time before coming to any conclusion. But all were astonished by Him. Matthew 7:28-29 says "the crowds were amazed at His teaching, because He taught as one who had authority."

We all are looking for some authority, someone who knows what they're talking about, someone we can believe in. We all have questions; questions we cry out to God in the desperate times of our lives, questions we whisper in the quiet moments of contemplation.

Over the next several weeks, it's our goal to answer your questions during the weekend services. Whether Biblical, theological, or about Chestnut Ridge, there are no bad questions. We hope you'll participate in forming the topics of our series, Ask.
